*1 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 24, 2022). Shortly thereafter, Coast Runner Industries, Inc. was incorporated, and Defendants began marketing a substantially identical product—the Coast Runner—to California consumers. (Cooley Decl. ¶ 3).

On May 3, 2024, Plaintiff initiated this action, alleging that Defendants’ marketing and sales practices with respect to the Coast Runner violate California Civil Code § 3273.62(a) and the UCL because the Coast Runner is nothing more than a rebranded Ghost Gunner and is specifically designed to facilitate users’ ability to manufacture firearms, and Defendants have expressly and impliedly promoted the Coast Runner as a gunsmithing tool. (Compl. ¶¶ 64-86). Plaintiff seeks relief in the form of damages and an injunction barring Defendants from further violation of California Civil Code § 3273.62(a). (Id. at 28). On October 31, 2024, Defendants filed the instant Motion to Strike. (See Mot.).

LEGAL STANDARD

California’s anti-SLAPP statute is designed to prevent “meritless claims arising from protected activity” that cause a chilling effect on the right of free speech. See Baral v. Schnitt, 1 Cal. 5th 376, 384 (2016) (emphasis in original). The statute provides a basis for defendants to move to strike a complaint only if (a) the cause of action arises from an act “in furtherance of the person’s right of petition or free speech . . . in connection with a public issue” and (b) the plaintiff fails to establish “a probability that [they] will prevail on the claim.” Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 425.16(b)(1). In considering the motion to strike, the Court must consider the pleadings and supporting and opposing affidavits. Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 425.16(b)(2).

The defendant bears the burden of establishing that the challenged claim “aris[es] from” four categories of enumerated protected activity. Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 425.16(e); Marijanovic v. Gray, York & Duffy, 137 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 1270 (2006). “In the anti-SLAPP context, the critical consideration is whether the cause of action is based on the defendant’s protected free speech or petitioning activity.” Navellier v. Sletten, 29 Cal. 4th 82, 89 (2002) (emphasis in original). Even if the defendant meets this burden, the Court may only strike the complaint if the claims lack “minimal merit.” WasteXperts, Inc. v. Arakelian Enters., Inc., 103 Cal. App. 5th 652, 659 (2024). At this second stage of analysis, the court’s “inquiry is limited to whether the plaintiff

1 has stated a legally sufficient claim and made a prima facie factual showing sufficient to sustain a 2 favorable judgment.” Id. (internal quotations omitted). “[The Court] accepts the plaintiff’s 3 evidence as true, and evaluates the defendant’s showing only to determine if it defeats the 4 plaintiff’s claim as a matter of law.” Baral, 1 Cal. 5th at 385; Overstock.com, Inc. v. Gradient 5 Analytics, Inc., 151 Cal. App. 4th 688, 699-700 (2007) (“We do not weigh credibility, nor do we 6 evaluate the weight of the evidence.”).

7 ARGUMENT

8 The Court should deny Defendants’ motion because (a) Plaintiff’s claims arise from illegal 9 conduct that is not protected by California’s anti-SLAPP statute and (b) Plaintiff’s claims have 10 more than the minimal merit required to survive an anti-SLAPP motion.

11 A. Defendants’ Conduct Is Not Protected Under the Anti-SLAPP Statute

12 The People allege that Defendants have designed, marketed, and offered for sale in 13 California a machine designed to build ghost guns in violation of California law. Instead of 14 engaging with these claims, Defendants’ motion myopically focuses on background facts included 15 in the Complaint that explain how and why the Coast Runner was conceived. But Plaintiff’s claims 16 arise only from Defendants’ efforts to “sell, offer to sell, transfer, advertise, or market the Coast 17 Runner in California” in violation of state law. (Compl. ¶ 67). Such illegal activity is not afforded 18 anti-SLAPP protections, and any of Defendants’ undisputed “commercial speech,” (Mot. 5 19 (emphasis in original)), is expressly exempted from anti-SLAPP protections.

20 1. Plaintiff’s Claims Do Not Arise from Past Litigation or Political Statements

21 Plaintiff’s claims do not arise from Defendants’ past litigation or the political statements 22 of its officers. In determining whether a defendant has demonstrated that the claims arise from 23 protected activity, courts “must look at the gravamen of the lawsuit.” Rivera v. First DataBank, 24 Inc., 187 Cal. App. 4th 709, 715 (2010) (internal quotation omitted). “The gravamen is defined 25 by the acts on which liability is based, not some philosophical thrust or legal essence of the cause 26 of action.” Contreras v. Dowling, 5 Cal. App. 5th 394, 405 (2016) (internal quotations omitted) 27 (emphasis in original); see also Ramona Unified Sch. Dist. v. Tsiknas, 135 Cal. App. 4th 510, 519-28 20 (2005). Here, Defendants argue that Plaintiff’s claims arise from statements “made before a

1 legislative, executive, or judicial proceeding” or “in connection with an issue under consideration 2 or review by a legislative, executive, or judicial body,” specifically Defense Distributed’s failed 3 constitutional challenge to AB 1621 and past statements from Defendants’ shared officers 4 concerning the constitutionality of “California laws regarding CNC milling machines.” (Mot. 2-5 4.) But the fact that such activity is mentioned in a complaint does not make it the gravamen of 6 the claim. Martinez v. Metabolife Internat., Inc., 113 Cal. App. 4th 181, 188 (2003) (“[C]ollateral 7 allusions to protected activity should not subject the cause of action to the anti-SLAPP statute.”).
8 Plaintiff’s claims are entirely independent of Defendants’ legal challenges and criticism of 9 California law.

10 The People assert that Defendants have violated § 3273.62 and the UCL through the 11 marketing and sale of the Coast Runner. Both of these laws prohibit certain sales, marketing, and 12 business practices. Section 3273.62 provides that a “person shall not sell, offer to sell, transfer, 13 advertise, or market a CNC milling machine . . . in a manner that knowingly or recklessly causes 14 another person in this state to engage in conduct prohibited by Section 29185 of the Penal Code, 15 or in a manner that otherwise knowingly or recklessly aids, abets, promotes, or facilitates conduct 16 prohibited by that section.” (emphasis added); See also Senate Rules Committee, Analysis of AB 17 1089, 2023-2024 Reg. Sess., at 8 (Cal. Sept. 2, 2023) (§ 3273.62 designed “to assist in 18 accountability and enforcement against companies whose sale or advertising practices” facilitate 19 violations of the California Penal Code (emphasis added)). Likewise, the UCL prohibits “any 20 unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice and unfair, deceptive, untrue or misleading 21 advertising.” Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 (emphasis added).

22 Accordingly, Plaintiff’s Complaint makes clear that the relevant conduct giving rise to its 23 claims are Defendants’ marketing and sales practices with regard to the Coast Runner. (See 24 Compl. ¶¶ 6-7, 9, 15-17, 29, 34, 37-41, 52-54, 67, 69, 79-80, 82.) The Complaint alleges that 25 Defendants are marketing and selling the Coast Runner at trade shows and online, explicitly and 26 implicitly highlighting its gunsmithing capabilities (id. ¶¶ 7, 29, 37-41, 43-47, 53-54, 69-72, 82); 27 Defendants’ marketing practices are designed to skirt California law (id. ¶¶ 6, 9, 67-72); 28 Defendants’ marketing targeted California consumers (id. ¶¶ 15-17); and Ghost Gunner and 1 Defense Distributed offered to sell the Coast Runner to California consumers (id. ¶¶ 32-35, 69).

2 Neither of Plaintiff's causes of action rely on Defense Distributed's failed attempt to invalidate 3 AB 1621 or Defendants' officers' statements. Such activity does not constitute sales, marketing, 4 or business practices prohibited under § 3273.62 or the UCL, and therefore could not give rise to 5 Plaintiff's claims. See San Diegans for Open Gov't v. San Diego State Univ. Rsch. Found., 13
6 Cal. App. 5th 76, 84 (2017) ("appropriate focus" for anti-SLAPP analysis "is on the alleged injury-7 producing conduct . . . , and not defendant's alleged wrongful motive for engaging in that 8 conduct"); Navellier, 29 Cal. 4th at 89 ("[T]he mere fact that an action was filed after protected 9 activity took place does not mean the action arose from that activity for the purposes of the anti-10 SLAPP statute"); Martinez, 113 Cal. App. 4th at 187-88.

11 The marketing and sales practices giving rise to Plaintiff's claims are deceptive and 12 promote illegal activity. Such advertising is not entitled anti-SLAPP protections. For advertising 13 to receive any First Amendment protections, "it at least must concern lawful activity and not be 14 misleading." Cent. Hudson Gas & Elec. Corp. v. Pub. Serv. Comm'n, 447 U.S. 557, 566 (1980).
15 The government is free to "ban forms of communication more likely to deceive the public than to 16 inform it, or commercial speech related to illegal activity." Id. at 563-64 (citations omitted).
17 Likewise, California's anti-SLAPP law "cannot be invoked by a defendant whose assertedly 18 protected activity is illegal as a matter of law." Flatley v. Mauro, 39 Cal. 4th 299, 305 (2006).

19 The People bring this lawsuit not to chill protected activity, but to protect the public and 20 enforce the duly-enacted laws of California. Defendants' Motion should be denied.

21 2. Defendants' Commercial Speech and Conduct is Exempt from Anti-SLAPP
22 Protections

23 Even if Defendants' marketing and sales practices constitute commercial speech entitled 24 to some First Amendment protections, commercial speech is expressly exempted from the anti-25 SLAPP statute under California Code of Civil Procedure § 425.17(c).

26 The commercial speech exemption applies when (1) the cause of action is against a person 27 primarily engaged in the business of selling or leasing goods or services; (2) the cause of action 28 arises from a statement or conduct by that person consisting of representations of fact about that person's business operations, goods, or services; (3) the statement or conduct was made for the

1 purpose of obtaining approval for, promoting, or securing sales or leases of, or commercial 2 transactions in, the person's goods or services; and (4) the intended audience is an actual or 3 potential buyer or customer. Simpson Strong-Tie Co. v. Gore, 49 Cal. 4th 12, 30 (2010).

4 Here, all elements of the exemption are satisfied. First, Defendants are primarily engaged 5 in the business of selling or leasing goods or services, namely CNC mills and related parts, tools, 6 materials, and software. (Cooley Decl. ¶¶ 3-4, 6, 9, 20, 25); see also Def. Distributed, 2022 WL 7 15524977, at *2.

8 Second, Defendants' violations of California Civil Code § 3273.62 and the UCL arise 9 directly from their commercial statements and conduct concerning representations of fact about 10 the Coast Runner. For example, the Complaint alleges, among other things, that (1) the Coast 11 Runner "has the same internal designs" and features as the Ghost Gunner and "is being marketed" 12 to facilitate "the illegal production of untraceable ghost guns" (Compl. ¶ 6; Cooley Decl. ¶¶ 24-13 25); (2) Defendants marketed the Coast Runner at a firearms trade show as a "cutting-edge CNC 14 mill [that] empowers small manufacturers and gunsmiths with advanced capabilities" (Compl. ¶¶ 15 38, 71; Cooley Decl. ¶¶ 12, 23); (3) Defendants informed California customers seeking to purchase 16 a Ghost Gunner that they would receive a Coast Runner in lieu of the Ghost Gunner, as the two 17 products are interchangeable (Compl. ¶ 34; Cooley Decl. ¶ 18); and (4) Coast Runner's website 18 includes a list of Prohibited Uses designed to facilitate the sale of the Coast Runner without running 19 afoul of federal firearm-related laws (Compl. ¶ 41; Cooley Decl. ¶ 14). These representations of 20 fact about the Coast Runner—and others specified in the Complaint—are the marketing and sales 21 efforts that give rise to Plaintiffs' claims.

22 Third, the statements and conduct described above relate to Defendants' marketing and 23 sales efforts. There can be no genuine dispute that such efforts were purposefully directed to 24 potential buyers for the purpose of securing sales of the Coast Runner. Cal. Code Civ. Proc.
25 § 425.17(c). Accordingly, Defendants' statements and conduct are excluded from anti-SLAPP 26 protections under the commercial speech exemption.

27 Defendants contend the commercial speech exemption only applies to "comparative 28 advertising" based on dicta in FilmOn.com Inc. v. DoubleVerify Inc., 7 Cal. 5th 133, 146-47

(2019). Several courts have rejected Defendants’ interpretation of FilmOn because there, the parties stipulated that the exemption did not apply, and the California Supreme Court instead was evaluating whether the conduct at issue fell into the “catchall” provision of § 425.16(e)(4). See WasteXperts, Inc. v. Arakelian Enters., Inc., 103 Cal. App. 5th 652, 665 (Ct. App. 2024), review denied (Sept. 25, 2024) (“FilmOn did not add a fifth element to the exemption, nor does it implicitly require courts to make a preliminary finding about whether the case involved comparative advertising.”); Neurelis, Inc. v. Aquestive Therapeutics, Inc., 71 Cal. App. 5th 769, 787 n.5 (2021) (same); Xu v. Huang, 73 Cal. App. 5th 802, 816 (2021) (same).

In any event, here, Defendants’ marketing was both explicitly comparative (e.g., the description of the Coast Runner as one of the “hottest new products” at SHOT Show) and impliedly comparative (e.g., marketing the Coast Runner as the California-specific version of the Ghost Gunner on Ghost Gunner’s website, indicating to consumers that it had the same capabilities as the Ghost Gunner and was more suited to gunsmithing than other CNC machines). Under any interpretation of FilmOn, Defendants’ conduct falls within the commercial speech exemption.

In sum, to the extent Plaintiffs’ claims rest on speech or conduct, it is unprotected commercial speech or conduct that falls under the § 425.17(c) commercial speech exemption to the anti-SLAPP statute. The Court should therefore deny Defendants’ Motion.

B. Plaintiff Will Likely Prevail on Its Claims

Even if the Court determines that the challenged claims arise from activity protected by the anti-SLAPP statute, Defendants’ motion must nevertheless be denied because Plaintiff’s claims not only have the minimal merit required to survive an anti-SLAPP motion, but also are likely to succeed on the merits. “[I]n order to establish the requisite probability of prevailing, the plaintiff need only have stated and substantiated a legally sufficient claim.” Navellier, 29 Cal. 4th at 88 (internal quotation and citation omitted). Here, Plaintiff easily satisfies its burden at the second step of the anti-SLAPP analysis.

First, Plaintiff sufficiently alleged a violation of California Civil Code § 3273.62. The Complaint alleges that each of the Defendants have offered to sell, advertised, and marketed (Compl. ¶¶ 7, 9, 32, 34-40, 52-54) the Coast Runner CNC milling machine (id. ¶¶ 34-35, 38) in a 1 manner that knowingly or recklessly caused, aided, abetted, promoted, or facilitated unlicensed 2 persons in California to manufacture firearms with a CNC milling machine in violation of 3 California Penal Code § 29185 (id. ¶¶ 6-7, 9, 32, 34-47, 67-72). Because the alleged conduct 4 violates California law, Plaintiffs have also adequately alleged a violation of the UCL. Cal. Bus.

5 & Prof. Code § 17200; Boschma v. Home Loan Ctr., Inc., 198 Cal. App. 4th 230, 252 (2011)
6 (noting UCL “borrows violations of other laws and treats them as . . . independently actionable”).

7       Second, Plaintiff has made a prima facie showing of facts that substantiate its allegations.
8 There is no dispute that the Coast Runner is a CNC milling machine. (Cooley Decl. ¶ 25). Nor 9 can there be any dispute that Defendants have offered to sell, advertised, or marketed the Coast 10 Runner. (Id. ¶¶ 16, 22-23, 28-29). Finally, Plaintiff’s evidence demonstrates that Defendants 11 knowingly or recklessly caused, aided, abetted, promoted, or facilitated unlicensed persons in 12 California to manufacture firearms with a CNC milling machine.

13       Coast Runner’s name alone is a signal to customers that it is functionally equivalent to the 14 Ghost Gunner. Coast Runner and Ghost Gunner share the same components, parts, and 15 specifications. (Id. ¶¶ 24-25). The manual for the Coast Runner was clearly derived from materials 16 used for the Ghost Gunner, further indicating to consumers the similarities between the products.
17 (Id. ¶¶ 24-25). Ghost Gunner’s website informed California purchasers that they would receive a 18 Coast Runner in lieu of a Ghost Gunner, demonstrating the products’ interchangeability. (Id. ¶ 18).
19 Defendants promoted the Coast Runner as a gunsmithing tool. (Id. ¶¶ 14, 23, 25). Defendants’ 20 Terms of Use require purchasers to verify that they are not prohibited from possessing firearms 21 under the Gun Control Act, as set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 922(g). (Id. ¶ 14). Defendants make no 22 effort to verify that purchasers of the Coast Runner are licensed firearms manufacturers. (Id. ¶ 23 14). Together, these facts clearly establish Defendants’ efforts to unlawfully sell and market the 24 Coast Runner as a means for California residents to self-manufacture firearms.

25       Ignoring the sufficiency of Plaintiff’s pleadings and evidence, Defendants attack Plaintiff’s 26 claims on various legal bases. The Court should reject each of Defendants’ arguments.

27       1.     Defendants’ Personal Jurisdiction Challenge Is Improperly Raised and Unavailing

28       Defendants first challenge Plaintiffs’ claims on the basis of a purported lack of personal

1 jurisdiction over each of the Defendants. The argument is improperly raised in Defendants’ motion 2 to strike. California Code of Civil Procedure § 418.10(e)(3) provides that a defendant’s failure to 3 move to quash service of summons on the ground of personal jurisdiction “at the time of filing 4 a . . . motion to strike constitutes a waiver of the issue[] of lack of personal jurisdiction[.]” 5 Defendants never filed a motion to quash under § 418.10 and have therefore waived any personal 6 jurisdiction defenses. Additionally, “it has long been the rule in California that a party waives any 7 objection to the court’s exercise of personal jurisdiction when the party makes a general 8 appearance in the action.” Roy v. Superior Ct., 127 Cal. App. 4th 337, 341 (2005). Here, 9 Defendants have made “a general appearance” as the motion to strike “raises other than 10 jurisdictional objections” and requests attorney’s fees and costs. Fireman’s Fund Ins. Co. v.
11 Sparks Constr., Inc., 114 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1145 (2004); (Mot. 1-6, 10-14.).

12 Even if Defendants have not waived their personal jurisdiction arguments, the Court may 13 properly exercise personal jurisdiction. A court may exercise specific jurisdiction over a 14 nonresident defendant if “(1) the defendant has purposefully availed himself of forum benefits; (2) 15 the controversy relates to, or arises out of, the defendant’s contacts with the forum; and (3) the 16 exercise of jurisdiction comports with fair play and substantial justice.” Yue v. Yang, 62 Cal. App.
17 5th 539, 547 (2021).

18 Here, all three prongs of the specific jurisdiction analysis are met. First, Defendants 19 purposefully and voluntarily directed their activities at California. The Complaint alleges that, in 20 an effort to circumvent AB 1621 and maintain access to the California market, Ghost Gunner, Inc.
21 and Defense Distributed formed Coast Runner Industries as a vehicle to market and sell the Coast 22 Runner as the “California-specific” version of the Ghost Gunner. (Compl. ¶¶ 15-17, 24-47); Ford 23 Motor Co. v. Mont. Eighth Jud. Dist. Ct., 592 U.S. 351, 359 (2021) (contacts sufficient where 24 “defendant deliberately reached out beyond its home—by, for example, exploiting a market in the 25 forum State” (cleaned up)). Ghost Gunner, Inc. and Defense Distributed marketed and sold the 26 Coast Runner as a replacement for the Ghost Gunner, informing potential California purchasers 27 that “California residents ordering a Ghost Gunner CNC machine consent to receiving a Coast 28 Runner CNC machine in lieu of a Ghost Gunner.” (Cooley Decl. ¶ 18). Expressly marketing and

1 offering to sell a product to consumers in a particular state is sufficient to establish purposeful
2 availment of the forum benefits. Asahi Metal Indus. Co. v. Superior Ct. of Cal., Solano Cnty., 480
3 U.S. 102, 112 (1987) (designing product for forum state market indicative of purposeful 4 availment).

5 Moreover, Coast Runner Industries' Terms and Conditions provided that use of its website 6 and "Marketplace Offerings" (i.e., the Coast Runner) were "governed by and construed in 7 accordance with the laws of the State of California . . . and to be entirely performed within the 8 State of California." (Cooley Decl. ¶ 15); Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 482 9 (1985) (choice-of-law provisions relevant to personal jurisdiction analysis). The Terms and 10 Conditions also provided that the parties would litigate disputes in San Diego, California. (Cooley 11 Decl. ¶ 15). In fact, where a dispute is prosecuted in state or federal court in San Diego, California, 12 the Terms and Conditions provided that "the Parties hereby consent to, and waive all defenses for 13 lack of personal jurisdiction." (Id. (emphasis added)). Moreover, the Terms and Conditions 14 directed "California Users and Residents" to contact the California Department of Consumer 15 Affairs if any complaint was not satisfactorily resolved. (Id.)

16 Defendants also marketed the Coast Runner at the "Maker Faire" trade show in Mare 17 Island, California on October 18-20, 2024. The Marker Faire webpage for the Coast Runner noted 18 that "[o]ur company has a ten-year history in 3D printing and desktop CNC technology." (Cooley 19 Decl. ¶ 22). As Coast Runner, Inc. was only formed in February 2023, the company's purported 20 "ten-year history" can only be a reference to Ghost Gunner, Inc. and Defense Distributed's 21 experience with "desktop CNC technology" for ghost gun manufacturing. Boasting one's 22 technical expertise to facilitate sales to consumers in the forum state constitutes purposeful 23 availment. See Daimler Trucks N. Am. LLC v. Superior Ct., 80 Cal. App. 5th 946, 952-53 (2022)
24 (finding purposeful availment where advertising campaign was directed to California).

25 Defendants do not deny any of the allegations in the Complaint concerning Defendants' 26 contacts with California. Instead, they offer the vague rebuttal that no Coast Runner has ever 27 "shipped" to California, and therefore Plaintiff's claims are "really about business that Plaintiffs 28 predict Defendants will carry on in the future." (Mot. 8). That no Coast Runner has been shipped

1 to California does not mean that the Court may not exercise personal jurisdiction over Defendants.
2 Defendants fail to offer any evidence whatsoever showing that they have not (a) advertised the 3 Coast Runner for sale in California, (b) accepted deposits for the Coast Runner from California 4 residents, (c) sold other products to California residents, (c) communicated about their products 5 with California residents, or (d) engaged in any other business in California.

6 Second, the instant action relates to, or arises out of, Defendants' contacts with the forum.
7 This action is premised on Defendants' joint marketing and advertising of the Coast Runner in 8 California and elsewhere in violation of California's Civil Code and the UCL. Snowney v.
9 Harrah's Ent., Inc., 35 Cal. 4th 1054, 1069 (2005) ("Because the harm alleged by plaintiff relates 10 directly to the content of defendants' promotional activities in California, an inherent relationship 11 between plaintiff's claims and defendants' contacts with California exists.").

12 Third, the Court's exercise of personal jurisdiction comports with fair play and substantial 13 justice. In making this determination, courts evaluate several factors, including "the burden on the 14 defendant of appearing in the forum" and "the forum state's interest in adjudicating the claim."
15 Vons Companies, Inc. v. Seabest Foods, Inc., 14 Cal. 4th 434, 448 (1996). Here, it is reasonable 16 for the Court to exercise personal jurisdiction over Defendants because California has a strong 17 interest in adjudicating the claim, as its legislature passed laws specifically designed to prohibit 18 the type of conduct in which Defendants have engaged, which poses a threat to the important social 19 policies of public safety and law enforcement. Moreover, any burden on Defendants of litigating 20 the case in the Superior Court of San Diego County cannot be given weight, as Coast Runner's 21 Terms and Conditions specifically designated San Diego, California as the venue for all state and 22 federal litigation, as well as arbitration. (Cooley Decl. ¶ 15.) As Coast Runner's personnel 23 overlaps with those of Ghost Gunner, Inc. and Defense Distributed (id. ¶¶ 3-4), it is not credible 24 that San Diego is a convenient venue for Coast Runner but burdensome for Ghost Gunner, Inc.
25 and Defense Distributed.

26 2. Plaintiff Has Adequately Pleaded Claims Against Each Defendant, in Addition to 27 Its Alter Ego Allegations

28 Defendants next argue that all claims against them must be dismissed because Plaintiff's alter ego allegations, which are a "necessary component of the case against all three defendants,"

1 are not sufficiently alleged. (Mot. 10-11.) Contrary to Defendants’ selective reading, the 2 Complaint establishes violations of § 3273.62 and the UCL by each Defendant individually and 3 adequately alleges alter ego liability in the alternative. (Compl. ¶¶ 64-86). Plaintiff has also 4 assembled a prima facie showing of facts, supported by admissible evidence, to substantiate its 5 allegations against each of the Defendants. (Supra at 8). Consequently, Plaintiff’s alter ego 6 allegations are not “necessary” to the claims against each of the three Defendants.

7 In the alternative, Plaintiff has also adequately alleged, and made a prima facie factual 8 showing of, alter ego liability between Coast Runner Industries, Ghost Gunner, Inc., and Defense 9 Distributed.<sup>1</sup> “Alter ego applies when there is such unity between corporation and individual that 10 the separateness of the corporation has ceased and holding only the corporation liable would result 11 in injustice.” JNM Express, LLC v. Lozano, 688 S.W.3d 327, 335 (Tex. 2024) (internal quotation 12 omitted); Virtualmagic Asia, Inc. v. Fil-Cartoons, Inc., 99 Cal. App. 4th 228, 244 (2002). “The 13 ‘injustice’ that gives rise to an application of alter ego liability emanates from the kinds of 14 abuse that the corporate structure should not shield—fraud, evasion of existing obligations, 15 circumvention of statutes, monopolization, criminal conduct, and the like.” Hernandez v. Cudco 16 Sols., LLC, 2023 WL 2659103, at *4 (Tex. App. Mar. 28, 2023) (cleaned up); Sonora Diamond 17 Corp. v. Superior Ct., 83 Cal. App. 4th 523, 538-39 (2000).

18 Here, the Complaint adequately alleges sufficient unity between the Defendants and abuse 19 of the corporate form such that a finding of alter ego liability is warranted. First, any distinctions 20 between Defense Distributed, Ghost Gunner, Inc., and Coast Runner Industries are illusory. Coast 21 Runner Industries has adopted Defense Distributed and Ghost Gunner’s history and experience in 22 the 3D printing and CNC mill industry as its own to advertise its products. (Ex. 19, Cooley Decl.
23 ¶ 22.) Defense Distributed and Ghost Gunner, Inc.—which, at different times, have been wholly-24 owned subsidiaries of each other—designated their own officers and directors to operate Coast 25 Runner and provided it with the products, schematics, technology, motion control software 26 (“grblGG,” which is specifically described as “firmware for Ghost Gunner machines” (Cooley

27 28 <sup>1</sup> Defendants argue that Texas law applies to Plaintiff’s alter ego allegations. Because there is no true conflict between California and Texas law regarding when a party may be deemed the alter ego of another,
Wimbledon Fund, SPC (Class TT) v. Graybox, LLC, 2016 WL 7444701, at *3 n.2 (C.D. Cal. June 13, 2016), Plaintiff prevails regardless of which state’s law applies.

Decl. ¶¶ 25, 30)), user manuals, employee base, and physical business locations to support its operations. (Id. ¶¶ 8,11; Compl. ¶¶ 28-33); Tryco Enterprises, Inc. v. Robinson, 390 S.W.3d 497, 509 (Tex. App. 2012) (factors in alter ego liability include whether entities shared common offices and common employees, and whether one entity’s employees rendered services on behalf of the other); Virtualmagic Asia, Inc., 99 Cal. App. 4th at 245 (alter ego factors include “use of the same offices and employees” and “use of one as a mere conduit for the affairs of the other”). Indeed, public filings indicate that all three Defendants operate out of the same Austin, Texas addresses. (Cooley Decl. ¶¶ 3-12). And Defense Distributed and Ghost Gunner, Inc. even offered the Coast Runner mill for sale to its own customers. (Compl. ¶¶ 34; Cooley Decl. ¶ 18). Centralized control is also indicative of alter ego liability. See Shaoxing Cnty. Huayue Imp. & Exp. v. Bhaumik, 191 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1198 (2011); Salazar v. Coastal Corp., 928 S.W.2d 162, 170 (Tex. App. 1996) (alter ego factors include “identity of shareholders, directors, officers, and employees” and “failure to distinguish in ordinary business between the two entities”). Here, Garret Walliman, a senior employee of Defense Distributed and the lead product designer of the Ghost Gunner, is identified as the former sole director of Coast Runner Industries. (Cooley Decl. ¶ 3). Cody Wilson, a director of Ghost Gunner, Inc. and Defense Distributed, is Coast Runner Inc.’s sole director (in addition to serving as its organizer), further erasing any distinctions between Coast Runner Industries, Ghost Gunner, Inc. and Defense Distributed. (Id. ¶ 4).

Second, the Complaint alleges with specificity that Defense Distributed and Ghost Gunner, Inc. together conceived of and created Coast Runner Industries. and the Coast Runner mill as a means to continue selling and marketing their CNC mills in California following Defense Distributed’s failed challenge to AB 1621. (Compl. ¶¶ 24-47). Accordingly, honoring the corporate form here would sanction an injustice—namely, (a) circumvention of California’s statutes and (b) criminal conduct. Hernandez, 2023 WL 2659103, at *4.

3. AB 1621 and AB 1089 Are Constitutional

As noted above, Defense Distributed has already tried and failed to invalidate AB 1621 on Second Amendment grounds in federal court. Def. Distributed v. Bonta, 2022 WL 15524977, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 21, 2022). Recycling those same arguments, Defendants contend that enforcing

1 AB 1621 and AB 1089 infringe an individual’s right to keep and bear arms. The argument is 2 wholly devoid of merit, as a plain reading of the relevant statutes reveals the conduct prohibited 3 therein is not protected by the Second Amendment.

4 In New York State Rifle & Pistol Association, Inc. v. Bruen, 597 U.S. 1 (2022), the Supreme 5 Court held that “when the Second Amendment’s plain text covers an individual’s conduct, the 6 Constitution presumptively protects that conduct.” Bruen, 597 U.S. at 17 (emphasis added). If, 7 and only if, the regulation implicates conduct protected by the plain text of the Second 8 Amendment, then “the government must demonstrate that the regulation is consistent with this 9 Nation’s historical tradition of firearm regulation.” Id.

10 Neither California Civil Code § 3273.62 or California Penal Code § 29185 implicates 11 conduct protected by the Second Amendment. Section 29185 regulates the possession and use of 12 CNC mills, not “Arms.” District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570, 581 (2008) (defining 13 “Arms” as “weapons”); Def. Distributed, 2022 WL 15524977, at *4 (“AB 1621 has nothing to do 14 with ‘keep[ing]’ or ‘bear[ing]’ arms.”). Likewise, California Civil Code § 3273.62 regulates sales 15 and marketing practices with respect to CNC mills; it does not in any way infringe upon an 16 individual’s Second Amendment rights. As the federal court properly found in rejecting 17 Defendants’ previous lawsuit, the plain text of the Second Amendment does not protect a right to 18 market devices for the self-manufacture firearms to anyone, without a license or without 19 complying with other gun violence prevention laws. Def. Distributed, 2022 WL 15524977, at *4.

20 To the extent the Court determines that § 3273.62 and § 29185 implicate conduct protected 21 by the plain text of the Second Amendment, both statutes are consistent with this Nation’s history 22 of firearm regulations. When considering cases involving “dramatic technological changes” courts 23 may engage in “a more nuanced approach” to its historical inquiry. Bruen, 597 U.S. at 34. Here, 24 “the self-assembly of firearms by non-professionals was never a threat to public safety in the 25 founding era, and thus would not have been in the contemplation of founding-era lawmakers.” 26 Palmer v. Sisolak, 2024 WL 4432818, at *7 (D. Nev. Oct. 7, 2024). Therefore, this court should 27 use a more nuanced approach that asks whether the challenged laws are “consistent with the principles that underpin the Nation’s regulatory tradition.” United States v. Rahimi, 602 U.S. 680, 681 (2024).

The historical traditions of “regulating both types of firearms and who could possess them for public safety reasons” are relevantly similar to § 3273.62 and § 29185. Palmer, 2024 WL 4432818, at *2. For example, a “1652 New York law outlawed illegal trading of guns, gun powder, and lead by private individuals” and a “1631 Virginia law required the recording not only of all new arrivals to the colony, but also ‘of arms and munitions.’” United States v. Serrano, 651 F. Supp. 3d 1192, 1211-12 (S.D. Cal 2023) (internal citations omitted) (analyzing 18 U.S.C. § 922(k), which prohibits firearms with obliterated serial numbers). These historical regulations “were designed to combat illegal arms and ammunition trafficking and to ensure that individuals considered dangerous did not obtain firearms.” Id. at 1212. In the early 1800s, Massachusetts and Maine imposed fines for falsely altering firearm barrel stamps verifying the weapon’s safety. United States v. Barnes, 2024 WL 3328593, at *5 (D. Del. July 8, 2024) (analyzing § 922(k)). Such laws were enacted “to protect citizens from firearms ‘which are unsafe, and thereby the lives of the citizens be exposed.’” Id. (quoting 3 Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts from November 28, 1780 to February 28, 1807, at 259).

Likewise, AB 1089 was enacted to combat the production of ghost guns, which “can be manufactured by an unlicensed buyer with parts that can be acquired without a background check or manufacturing license” and are therefore “difficult for law enforcement to trace.” Senate Committee on Appropriations, Analysis of AB 1089, 2023-2024 Reg. Sess., at 1 (Cal. Aug. 14, 2023). AB 1621 was enacted in response to the “proliferation of unserialized ghost guns,” which have “caused enormous harm and suffering, hampered the ability of law enforcement to trace crime guns and investigate firearm trafficking and other crimes, and dangerously undermined the effectiveness of laws and protections critical to the health, safety, and well-being of Californians.” 2022 Cal. Legis. Serv. Ch. 76 (A.B. 1621) (West). Accordingly, both AB 1089 and AB 1621 are consistent with this Nation’s historical tradition of firearm regulation.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should deny Defendants’ Motion to Strike.
